

Tap into over 400 'expert' years of logistics with Indigo

Following a very successful event in 2015, leading WMS provider Indigo Software will be exhibiting at IntraLogistex once again this year. Visit them on stand #91.

Visitors who come to the Indigo stand will have the opportunity to discuss specific supply chain and logistics challenges with Indigo's team of industry consultants, all of whom have many years of client-side operational experience. Specialists in the food and drink, FMCG, apparel and chemicals industries will be available for a one-to-one consultation during which companies can freely pick their brains and benefit from over 400 collective years of logistics management expertise.

Put Indigo's industry insights to your advantage

Visitors to the stand will benefit from Indigo's expertise in warehousing, as their consultants have real world experience in warehouse settings guaranteeing a practical and business process focused solution rather than an IT led solution.

Eric Carter, Indigo's solutions architect says, "Competitive pressures will continue to intensify and the cost of space will increase, making smaller warehouses more common and increasing operational pressures. Big challenges will be identifying cost efficiencies whilst being agile enough to provide an excellent service - partial automation may be an answer."

Mark Wilkinson, Indigo's food and drink specialist says, "Changing consumer habits mean people are less brand loyal and now do smaller shops more frequently - FMCG manufacturers need to adapt the way they make, handle and transport goods to cope with this change. For the warehouse, this has meant reviewing processes and technology to find ways to use available resources more efficiently in an already busy environment."

Catherine Thornley, Indigo's apparel specialist says, "Retailers are expecting greater levels of value add from manufacturers, which can add significant costs to logistics processes without the right process adjustments."

Visit Indigo's stand #91 to learn about new warehouse optimisation strategies and take advantage of our consultants' real industry insights.
